- During the visit to Stelia, Stéphane discussed the possible transition from the BC3 coating to a lighter formulation for current Air France black panels, reviewing both the expected implications in terms of application process and fire test performance.
- The program manager for KLM at Stelia confirmed that material ULFRB 914-5417 will be required with different treatments, for MGR and ACH programs. Treatments will therefore need to be double-checked with Stelia prior to application to ensure full compatibility.
- This same precaution is recommended for all KLM part numbers, as differences in coating parameters could affect surface finish and certification consistency across subcontractors.

- The visit to Stelia for the panel review at Fathom Tree was highly productive. All panels were successfully reviewed and discussed, with valuable input from Qatar Airways, Stelia's applicator, and Stelia's user experience specialist.
- The feedback received led to a few minor adjustments, all considered manageable without impact on the overall schedule or design intent.
- A seatbelt failure on the mock-up is expected to delay the program by a few weeks, providing additional time for all parties to finalize remaining details.
- Asahi also confirmed that one of the key materials will be available several weeks earlier, allowing certification testing to begin ahead of schedule.
- Overall feedback from Stelia was extremely positive, reinforcing confidence in Tapis' position as a potential SFE-direct supplier. However, a review of cost structure remains necessary, as current overseas shipment costs continue to impact competitiveness.

- Thanks to Adam's coordination, our relationship with Collins has also improved considerably. We are now better aligned as a team, Saudia, Collins, and Tapis, to ensure that we maximize the outcome of this program.
- The financial potential is substantial: combining the B787 and A330 retrofit fleets represents roughly 80 aircraft × 40 Business Class seats, with an estimated USD 1,000 per seat in material and panel value, a total potential around USD 3 million if we secure the panel scope.
- No news last week.

- For the suede portion, Tapis has been selected for the program. Materials will be needed early for the mock-up, and given the tight timeline, these will have to be produced as digitally printed materials, since the traditional process would take too long. It was confirmed that, as the program has now transitioned to SFE, the procurement responsibility lies with Thompson, who will therefore be in charge of ordering the digital material.
- Regarding the Nomex, the JPA team expressed strong interest in the Vegetal Nomex samples, but also informed that the Etihad Nomex material supplier has already been selected. However, since the program is now SFE-based, this opens the door for Tapis to compete directly on price with Thompson, once Etihad confirms that both materials are interchangeable.

- A conference call was held between Tapis TS, and TCI, during which Kevin reiterated that, based on the test data received, no existing treatment appears capable of bringing the material within the required limits. TCI indicated that they may have identified a possible loophole that could still allow the material to be certified using vertical burn testing only. The exact methodology or regulatory basis for this approach remains unclear.
- Batuhan (TCI) has been unavailable due to illness since yesterday. As soon as he is back, he is expected to call Stéphane to discuss the matter in more detail and clarify how TCI intends to proceed with this alternative certification path.

Kuwait Airways

Airline	Kuwait Airways		Aircraft	A330	7

- SFH received a call from Renaud, the program manager at Stelia, who expressed concern that the Oxford Grey material ordered by Kuwait Airways may have already been ordered by MGR for the same purpose, without Tapis being informed. Renaud is currently verifying this information to confirm whether it is indeed the case.
- SFH confirmed that some Oxford Grey material had been ordered, but clarified that this color is regularly ordered by MGR for the Air France program, and since no details were communicated to Tapis regarding its end use, there was no way to know it was intended for Kuwait. Renaud fully understood the situation and will come back with his findings once he has confirmed the facts.
